The country has not yet heard of a female bicycler. But then, wait a little.

The number of children in this State between the ages of four and twenty years, is 481,322. The amount of the apportionment is $199,748.63, making 41½ cents per scholar.

Miss Paine, a bright and accomplished young lady, has been appointed cashier at the Palmer, succeeding Mr. Sidney Whitney. It is said Miss Paine is the first of her sex to assume such a position in this country.

The best vindication the Republicans in the New York Legislature could make would be the vindication of the long-established principles of the Republican party. This would be the quickest and the wisest way to settle the senatorial contest.

Mr. Michael O'Brien, of Darien, Walworth county, who is 108 years old, claims to be the oldest man in Wisconsin. He is an inveterate smoker of tobacco, and in the language of Mark Twain he might have been 120 had he not used the weed.

There is a report from Washington that General Rusk, of this State, will soon receive what he has been seeking for several months—auditor of railway accounts for the government. Mr. French, who now holds that position, will be removed to make way for our Jerry.

Commissioner of Pensions Bentley will return to the practice of the law at Sheboygan after the first of July, the date fixed for his retirement from the pension bureau. He has done the government a great deal of good service, but the administration does not seem to appreciate that fact.

Mr. J. C. Flood, the California millionaire, has built an elegant mansion which undoubtedly will be the finest and most costly private residence in the United States. There is more solid mahogany, prima-vera, sandal, laurel, and amaranth wood about it than about any private house in the country, and the gorgeous colorings and artistics frescoing and the unexcelled richness and variety of the carvings and ornamentations in and about the rooms, combine to make it Mr. Flood's home the finest in all the land. It will cost much above a million dollars.

General Fremont does not appear to give satisfaction as Governor of Arizona. He is away much of the time attending to private business, and beside that the General finds it no easy task to confine himself closely to the gubernational duties in that far off and thinly populated Territory. The reverses the General has met with during the past dozen years mark an exceedingly touching event in his remarkable life. At one time he had all the fame and affluence that any man could desire, but by a strange decree of fate he lost his immense fortune and is now living on the charity of the government.

One of the marvelous things of the time is the immense tide of immigration to this country. During the month of May alone, there were 117,482, and the total during the preceding ten months was 564,294, a greater number than ever before arrived in this country for the same length of time. This vast influx from foreign countries is beginning to create some apprehension that the country cannot well provide for so many. We can healthfully assimilate one or two hundred thousand strangers every year, but when the tide runs up to over half a million annually, we may reasonably feel some apprehension of the effect which may be produced upon our public life. Yet there are millions of acres of good land lying idle in the new States and Territories, and the immigrants are usually the ones to do most of the settling on our public lands.

There have been numerous rumors in regard to an early closing of the fight at Albany, but still the end does not come. There does not seem to be any hope that there will be an election at the present session. The cause of this is that the leading men of the factions do not appear to desire any compromise. With the Conklingites it is Conkling and Platt or nobody; and with the administration men it is anybody but Conkling and Platt. With this feeling so deeply set in both factions there is hardly any hope that there will be a happy issue out of the present difficulty. Should both sides become disgusted and end the whole business by an adjournment, there will be considerable doubt as to the result next fall in the election in that State. The talk that General Grant will probably become a compromise candidate for one of the terms is not to be elected upon.

The Rev. Arthur Edwards, editor of the Christian Advocate, published at Chicago, has gone to Europe with his son who is fourteen years old. They propose to spend the summer on the continent, making a tour of England, Scotland, France, Germany, and Italy, and will do all their traveling on bicycles which they wil purchase in London, and which they consider better than those made in America. The distance they will travel on bicycles is about two thousand miles, and their average will be from twenty to sixty miles a day. This will be a refreshing trip for Mr. Edwards; but it suggests that if he would spend the same amount of time and study on the Advocate that he does on sports, he would make the paper much more readable and more of an honor to the church which it represents. Mr. Edwards is not brilliant, and what he lacks in that direction he does not seem to make up in industry and sound judgment.

GRANT'S EXPLANATION.

He is Perfectly Willing that the Presidential Letter Should be Published.

NEW YORK, June 20.—A reporter of the Times saw ex-President Grant in his apartments at the Fifth Avenue hotel, and asked him whether, while in Mexico, he received a letter from President Garfield in relation to the rupture between Conkling and Platt and the administration. General Grant said he did receive President Garfield's letter in reply to one sent by him to the President, in which he gave such an expression of his views upon the position of Conkling and Platt toward the administration as he now maintains. His opinion in that matter has undergone a change. He was on the steamer, about to leave the harbor of Vera Cruz, when the postmaster of that city boarded the vessel and handed him the President's letter. This letter, he said, was in a desk in his office down town. His time had been so much occupied since his arrival in this city that he had not an opportunity to write a reply to it, as it certainly required an acknowledgment.

It was certainly a most polite and friendly letter, he said, and he intends to reply to it at length as it deserved to be treated. The General pointed to pen, ink, and paper on the table in the center of the room, and said he had already begun his answer to the President. When asked whether he was willing to give the President's letter for publication, he said he did not feel it would be a proper thing for him to do. His attention was called to that part of a Washington dispatch which read that the President would decline to give the two letters for publication unless the consent of General Grant was obtained. "The President has my free and full permission to publish the letters," said the General, adding: "My letter to him was not marked confidential, and he is at perfect liberty to give it to the press." The General said that the letters would explain themselves, and that nothing further was necessary to be said upon that point. He thought, when the charge was publicly made that he was inconsistent in the matter of what is now called "Senatorial courtesy," is was time for him to say something upon that subject.

STATE UNIVERSITY.

The Graduating Exercises of the Wisconsin University at Madison.

MADISON, June 20.—The graduation exercises of the university were held here to-day. The examination was held in the Senate chamber this morning, and twenty-seven candidates were declared successful. In the evening an address to the class was delivered in the Assembly chamber by James G. Jenkins, of Milwaukee. At 8 o'clock the chamber was packed, many coming from a distance to attend. The national colors encircled the gallery, and portraits of the famous lawyers and judges of Wisconsin, were hung about the room. The speaker's address was mainly an eulogy of the profession, declaring it to be the noblest of all. He gave an interesting history of legal practice in the early days, and especially when some of the purest and ablest judges were condemned for witchcraft. He advocated the abandonment of the present practice of electing the judiciary by popular vote, and would have the judges appointed by the Governor, and only to be removed for cause or impeached for high crimes. He gave to the class much admirable advice as to how they may achieve success. Especially must they treasure a client's confidence and beware of modern newspaper reporters who are so ready to benefit defendants before trial. He closed with an eloquent appeal to the candidates to study hard. "Henceforth, from this on, is the sad time. You will soon be admitted to the bar. It will not be long before you are admitted to practice. See that you sow wheat, not tares" In concluding, he welcomed the class to the ranks of Webster, Choate, O'Conor, Ryan, and those who are now in the profession, as their successors. Immense applause was given the speaker as he sat down. The exercises concluded with music by the orchestra and a song by the law class quartet.

HAYES.

He Don't Like to Strike the Under Dog in the Fight.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 20.—Ex-President Hayes is reported to have written a letter here, in which, referring to his published comments upon Senator Conkling, he says: "Of course, I did not expect this to be reported about, or I would have a closed mouth,—not that the reporter blundered to any great extent, but I don't like to seem ever to staike a man who is the under dog in the fight, even if he is my enemy."

A REMARKABLE CASE.

A Tennessee Woman Delivered of Seven Children at One Birth—Trials and Tribulations of the Physician in Attendance.

LOUISVILLE, Ky. June 20—A few days ago a dispatch came from Nashville to the effect that a woman residing in Jackson county, that State, had given birth to seven children at one time. A correspondent telegraphs to-night that after the first child was born the pains of labor continued. An examination convinced the physician that there were two instead of one, and the woman was soon delivered of the second child, both girls. The physician gave directions as to the care of both mother and children and prepared to take his leave.

Before reaching his horse at the gate he was recalled, and delivered the woman of another girl baby. Again the physician took his leave, and again was recalled, bringing to the light another girl baby. This was considered remarkable, and the physician was getting puzzled over the matter. He, however, congratulated the husband on his good fortune, and departed for home.

He had not gone more than half a mile before he was overtaken by the excited husband of the woman, who, in breathless haste, informed him that there was still another child to be born. Hastening back, the physician arrived in time to aid in delivering the woman of her fifth child. The physician was then prevailed on by the husband and father, to stay the remainder of the night. He was slow to accept the invitation, and sat down to wait developments. In the course of fifteen or twenty minutes he was again called to the bedside of the woman, and very soon the sixth child was breathing the breath of life.

Morning dawned, and the doctor took his leave. Having had no sleep during the night, he threw himself across the bed on his arrival home, and was soon sound asleep. About 8 o'clock he was aroused by his wife, who stated that Mr. B. was at the gate and wanted to see him immediately.

"What's the matter now?" asked the doctor.

"Mary appears to be going to—you know," replied Mr. B.

"What! another one?" exclaimed the doctor, excitedly.

"That's it," said Mr. B., a smile spreading his mouth from ear to ear.

The doctor mounted his horse, and was soon at the house of B. He was too late, however, to be of any service, as the seventh child, a girl, was born a few minutes previous to his arrival. The doctor remained about the premises during the rest of the day, but his services were not again needed. The gentleman who made the above statement, and it is almost in his exact words, says he has seen the seven babies several times, and, while not large, weighing four to five pounds each, they appear to be healthy, well-developed children. The occurrence has created considerable excitement in the neighborhood, and the people for miles around flock to see the woman and her babies. The husband is described as being of small stature,—in fact, exceedingly thin,—while his wife is said to be strong and healthy. Physicians here are considerably excited over the affair, and some are talking of paying the family a visit. The most singular feature of the children is that all of them have blue eyes, and so closely resemble each other that it is hard to tell "which from 'other."

WISCONSIN EPISCOPALIANS.

MILWAUKEE, June 20.—The annual council of the Episcopal diocese of Wisconsin will begin in All-Saints cathedral to-morrow. Bishop Welles will deliver the address during the forenoon. In the evening there will be a missionary meeting in St. Paul's church, with addresses by the rector, the Rev. Dr. Cole, of Nashota; the Rev. Marquis Lane, of Madison; Dr. G. Meacham, Sr., of Racine, and Wilham Ruger, of Janesville. The council will continue for three days. On the evening of Thursday Bishop Whipple, of Minnesota, will deliver the closing address of the council.

THE TILTONS.

NEW YORK, June 20.—Mrs. Elizabeth Tilton recently became a grandmother, a child having been born to her daughter Florence, who resides in London. Her second daughter, Alice, it is said, is to be married this summer while her father is in Europe. Mrs. Tilton is still living in the house in Brooklyn where her husband's agent rented for her several years ago. Her mother, Mrs. Morse, her son Carroll, who has abandoned the notion of studying the ministry and has obtained a position in a mercantile house, and her youngest son, Ralph, lives with her. Theodore Tilton has not visited his wife for two years. Mrs. Morse, it is said, recently astonished Beecher by appearing in a pew in Plymouth church at the memorial services held in connection with Mrs. Ovington's death.

WISCONSIN SCHOOL FUND.

MADISON, June 20.—The superintendent of public instruction has certified to Secretary of State Warner the apportionment of the school fund to the several counties in the State. The apportionment was made on the number of children between the ages of four and twenty years, attending school at the rate of forty-one and one-half cents for each child. This is an advance of two and a half cents from what it was when Mr. Warner came into office. This is owing to Mr. Warner's endeavors to loan the school fund, and the preference for this to other funds. The total number of children is 481,322, and the total amount of the fund to be distributed is $199,748.63.

REFUSES TO MARRY.

MILWAUKEE, June 20.—Mr. Warren E. Kelley, of Cincinnati, arrived in the city yesterday, ostensibly to be married to a married to a Miss Logan, a lady residing at the Kirby house. They had a meeting, and from some cause or other Miss Logan refused to keep good her promise to marry the husky Cincinnatian, and a regular row ensued. A second meeting was held this evening, and the late lovers could not agree, when Miss Logan left the parlors, and now refuses to see Mr. Kelly at all. Kelly is very much broken up, and will bring an action of breach of promise in the circuit court to-morrow morning. He could not be seen.

Education of Farmers' Children.

The work of the farmer lies at the basis of the world's prosperity. The better man and the better farmer he may be, the more thrifty and prosperous will be the Nation and the more he will benefit the world in his individual capacity. It is, therefore, of the highest importance that the farmer should be an intelligent and well-educated man, that he may fill his place in society in the best and most useful manner. But there is a popular impression abroad that a good farmer or a good shoe-maker or mechanic may be spoiled by too much education. If a good education prevents the one from growing good crops, or the others from making durable shoes or building solid houses or barns, there might be some truth in this idea. But why should the cultivation of the mind have this deplorable result? It is very plain that if such a result should be produced something is wrong in the education, and it has not been of the right kind. And it is just here where failure is made in those cases where the education of farmers' children results in disappointment. We cannot deny that in many cases parents have been disappointed in this way. Children have been sent to country schools and every year their minds and hopes have been turned further away from rural pursuits, from farm life and work, and in a direction toward city life, with all its ambitions, until, when they have become freed from parental restraint, they have turned their backs upon the old homestead, and the old folks have been left desolate and alone in their age, when most they needed the society and help of their children.

The fact is that there is a good deal of injudicious and superficial teaching in the country schools, more of the artificial and less of the real solid and useful training of the mind than there should be. The knowledge conveyed is not always such as will train the mind for acquiring more knowledge of a higher character, not such as will enable the youth to learn by reading and observation after he has left school; in short, the child is not taught how to learn, but on the contrary is crammed with some facts and some crude ideas, and when the course of instruction is completed he or she is sent out into the world with a belief that there is no more to learn, and yet having but little which can be usefully employed in the manner of life in which the student has been brought up. With a mind untrained to thinking for itself nothing can be learned from present associations, and the starved intellect wanders abroad in the endeavor to find elsewhere what it cannot find at home. After uselessly trying a year or two on the farm without heart for farm work, with a perverted idea that it is degrading and unfit for a young man of ambition, and in the hope of finding some employment that will be more suitable to his talents, the young man flees to the city or to the West to add one more to the crowd of disappointed fortune-hunters. In this respect "a little knowledge is a dangerous thing." Not because the knowledge itself is useless or dangerous, but because the little there is of it does not form any settled basis for useful work, but being unbalanced by any practical means of applying it, and because it has diverted the mind from a proper course of thought or study afterward, it leaves the young man in an unsettled and unsatisfactory condition, neither contented to remain where he is nor having any clear idea of what he should do elsewhere. Fortunately, a young American does not often fail in finding some opportunity of making himself useful as far as his capabilities may permit, for there is work for all in some way or other or in some place or other. This, however, is an advantage which is accidental, and for which he does not deserve any personal credit, and which may be but temporary, and cannot, therefore, be always depended upon; and, further, opportunities are left behind which he might have improved in a very useful manner. For while a farm is left uncultivated and is abandoned to weeds for want of well applied labor, an injury is done to the world. All the desolate homesteads and farms are not barren or hopelessly cumbered with rocks and stones. Once all these farms were occupied by thrifty, industrious farmers, who reared happy families in moderate but substantial comfort. These old farmers were not made miserable by brooding over their isolation from the world, which is a recent discovery altogether and only so much talked about of late by professional writers who know nothing about it, but have, or think they have, a sort of sentimental idea of how isolated they would be on a farm and surrounded by farmers with whom they can never have any sympathy. The farmer lives in a little world of his own, in which, with contentment, he can find enough to occupy his hands and head either at work or at rest; and it is a mistaken course of education that leads a young man to despise this world of content and quiet comfort which is found in the homestead of an industrious farmer.

A farmer cannot be too well educated. He may, and should be, possessed of all the practical knowledge which relates to his business. This should be taught in rural schools as soon as the first rudiments—"the three R's," as they have been humorously called—have been mastered. This will require some primary insight into mechanics, hydrostatics, botany and chemistry. To a young mind that has been properly trained and has not been misled these will open a very fairy land of wonders, which the boy or girl may explore with the greatest advantage and delight and in which every discovery will tempt to further explorations. Such a study will make farm life vastly more interesting and delightful than the superficial and frivolous existence which is too often passed by young men in towns and cities, where questionable if not vicious, excitements are frequently sought to mitigate the real isolation which may be more often found in a city than in the country. Some of the most lonesome men and women are found in cities and towns and in the midst of crowds. Where one can not find enjoyment in his own surroundings there he is isolated, as if he were alone in a desert.

The education given in country schools should be as complete as that of town schools. Those scholars who wish should have an opportunity of studying languages, especially Latin, without a knowledge of which one can not really understand English. Mathematics, at least as far as algebra and geometry, should be taught to the older students, and history should be made a study. It would be a useful thing for a farmer's boy to know that farmers have sometimes occupied the first places in the world; that it was a farmer who, while plowing in his fields, was called by messengers to become Dictator of Rome and General of the Roman Army, and who, leaving his oxen, obeyed the call, vanquished the invaders and enemies of his country, and in sixteen days returned again to his plow. Cincinnatus, the farmer, General and deliverer of his country, might well be held as an ornament to a profession or an industry that is too much in danger of being despised by thoughtless persons. It would be useful also for our daughters to know that the first ladies of Rome used the spinning-wheel and were the best of housekeepers. Studies of these kinds would, of course, require good teachers. Good teachers should be secured and encouraged. A farmer should at least be willing to expend as much on the comfort, welfare and education of his children as he would on the stabling and the training of a colt. But time and space fail, and it may be enough to say in closing these suggestions that when a really good education is provided for farmers' children in the country schools there will be less thought or heard of the isolation and disagreeableness of farm life.—Henry Stewart, in N. Y. Times.

Walking Horses.

The walking gait is of all gaits the one to be encouraged. A horse can walk five miles in an hour, and has done it. Such a horse is worth more than Maud S., St. Julien and Bonner's team all put together; he would probably walk to San Francisco quicker than either of them could trot there. Walking is the gait, and the sole gait, for the farm. Why will farmers stand by the hour and elongate their necks like a Shanghai rooster, to get a glimpse of a wheezing, slender, ill-shaped trotting nag, when the managers of the exhibition utterly ignore the kind of travel that concerns him? Why don't farmers bring forward their good walkers, insist on exhibiting them at the fairs and claim the highest premiums for the most important performances? The walking action is not inconsistent with great strength, endurance and beauty. Look at the picture of a trotting horse; is it handsome? Can these animals draw a big load? Can they bear the rough and tumble of life like a Norman-French? Bred for extremest speed they become what no sensible man wants.—Western Agriculturist.

Speed at Which Wings are Driven.

The speed at which some wings are driven is enormous. It is occasionally so great as to cause the pinions to emit a drumming sound. To this source the buzz of the fly, the drone of the bee, and the boom of the beetle are to be referred. When a grouse, partridge, or pheasant, suddenly springs into the air, the sound produced by the whirring of its wings greatly resembles that produced by the contact of steel with the rapidly revolving stone of the knife-grinder It has been estimated that the common fly moves its wings 330 times per second, i.e., 19,800 times per minute, and that the butterfly moves its wings nine times per second or 540 times per minute. These movements represent an incredibly high speed even at the roots of the wings; but the speed is enormously increased at the tips of the wings, from the fact that the tips rotate upon the roots as centres. In reality, and as has been already indicated, the speed of the tips of the wings increases in proportion as the tips are removed from the axes of rotation, and in proportion as the wings are long. This is explained on a principle well understood in mechanics. If a rod or wing hinged at the point be made to vibrate, the free end of the rod or wing always passes trough a very much greater space in a given time than the part nearer the root of the wing. The progressive increase in the speed of the wings, in proportion as the wings become larger, explains why the wings of bats and birds are not driven at the extravagant speed of insect wings, and how the large and long wings of large bats and birds are driven more leisurely than the small and short wings of small bats and birds. That the wing is driven more slowly in proportion to its length is proved by experiment, and by observing the flight of large and small birds of the same genus. Thus, large gulls flap their wings much more slowly than small gulls; configuration and relative size of the wings to the body being the same in both. This is a hopeful feature in the construction of flying-machines, as there can be no doubt that comparatively very slow movements will suffice for driving the long powerful wings required to elevate and propel flying-machines. The speed of the wing is in part regulated by the amplitude of the wing. Thus if the wing be broad as well as long, the beats are necessarily reduced in frequency. This is especially true of the heron, which is one of the most picturesque and at the same time one of the slowest flying birds we have.

I have timed the heron on several occasions, and find that in ordinary flight its wings make exactly sixty up and sixty down strokes, i. e., 120 beats per minute. In the pterodactyl, the great extinct Saurian, the wing was enormously elongated, and in this particular instance probably from fifty to sixty beats of the wing per minute sufficed for flight. Fifty or sixty pulsations of the wing per minute do not involve much wear and tear of the working parts, and I am strongly of opinion that artificial flight, if once achieved, will become a comparatively safe means of locomotion as far as the machinery required is concerned.—Fraser's Magazine.

"Come, Sleep."

"Come, sleep," cries the Grecian mother, "come, sleep, take him away; come, sleep, and make him slumber. Carry him to the vineyard of the Aga, to the gardens of the Aga. The Aga will give him grapes; his wife, roses; his servants, pan-cakes." A second Greek lullaby must have sprung from a luxuriant imagination. It comes from Scio:

Sleep, carry off my son, o'er whom three sentinels do watch,
Three sentinels, three wardens brave, three mates you cannot match.
These guards; the sun upon the hill, the eagle on the plain,
And Boreas, whose chilly blasts do hurry o'er the main.
—The sun went down into the west, the eagle sank to sleep,
Chill Boreas to his mother sped across the briny deep.
"My son, where were you yesterday? Where on the former night
Or with the moon or with the stars did you contend in fight?
Or with Orion did you strive—though him I deem a friend?"
"Nor with the stars, nor with the moon, did I in strife contend,
Nor with Orion did I fight, whom for your friend I hold,
But guarded in a silver cot a child as bright as gold."

The Greeks have a curious way of looking at sleep; they seem absorbed in the thought of what dreams may come—if, indeed, the word dream rightly describes their conception of that which happens to the soul while the body takes its rest—if they do not rather cling to some vague notion of a real severance between matter and spirit during sleep.—Fraser's Magazine.

—A Minnesota farmer has raised and trained a pair of elk so that they will watch and protect from wolves or dogs one hundred and fifty sheep in one pasture. They will immediately attack every dog that approaches the field; will stand and watch until the canine disappears.

FOR NERVOUS DEBILITY
SOLD IN A YEAR AND SPERMATORRHŒA.

A valuable Discovery and New Departure in Medical Science, an entirely New and positively effective Remedy for the speedy and permanent Cure of Seminal Emissions and Impotency by the only true way, viz: Direct Application to the principal Seat of the Disease, acting by Absorption, and exerting its specific influence on the Seminal Vesicles, Ejaculatory Ducts, Prostate Gland, and Urethra. The use of the Remedy is attended with no pain or inconvenience, and does not interfere with the ordinary pursuits of life; it is quickly dissolved and soon absorbed, producing an immediate soothing and restorative effect upon the sexual and nervous organizations wrecked from self-abuse and excesses, stopping the drain from the system, restoring the mind to health and sound memory, removing the Dimness of Sight, Nervous Debility, Confusion of Ideas, Aversion to Society, etc., and the appearance of premature old age usually accompanying this trouble, and restoring perfect Sexual Vigor, where it has been dormant for years. This mode of treatment has stood the test in very severe cases, and is now a pronounced success. Drugs are too much prescribed in these troubles, and, as many can bear witness to, with but little if any permanent good. There is no Nonsense in this Preparation. Practical observation enables us to positively guarantee that it will give satisfaction. During the eight years that it has been in general use, we have thousands of testimonials as to its value, and it is now conceded by the Medical Profession to be the most rational means yet discovered of reaching and curing this very prevalent trouble, that is well known to be the cause of untold misery to so many, and upon whom quacks prey with their useless nostrums and big fees. The Remedy is put up in neat boxes, of three sizes. No. 1, (enough to last a month,) $3; No. 2, (sufficient to effect a permanent cure, unless in severe cases,) $5; No. 3, (lasting over three months, will stop emissions and restore vigor in the worst cases,) $7. Sent by mail, sealed, in plain wrappers. Full DIRECTIONS for using will accompany EACH BOX.

MILTON.

—The following is the programme of exercises for commencement week: Annual sermon before the Christian Association, by Rev. D. E. Maxson, D. D., of Plainfield, N. J., Friday evening, June 24th. Anniversary session of the Philomathean society, Saturday evening, June 25th. Baccalaureate sermon, by President T. R. Williams, D. D., Sunday evening, June 26th, Anniversary session of the Iduna Lyceum, Monday evening, June 27th. Anniversary session of the Orophilian Lyceum, Tuesday evening, June 28. The above exercises will take place in College chapel. Exercises of the graduating class Wednesday, June 29th, at 10 o'clock a. m. Address before the Alumni at 3 o'clock p. m. The above exercises will be held on the college campus, and the music in the forenoon will be furnished by the Milton Cornet Band. On Wednesday evening the band will give a grand concert under the auspices of the class of '81.

—The comedy of the "School Ma'am" was presented at College chapel, on the evening of the 14th inst., under the auspices of the Iduna Lyceum, and the Philomathean society, with the following cast:

Kate Bell, the school ma'am.....Lillian E. Bond
Mrs. Grump, the complaining parent.....Lucy D. Greenman
Mrs. Undertow.....May E. Bass
Marly Undertow.....Nelly Pickett
Minnie Trueblood.....Anna E. Wixom
Undertow, "a self-made man," director.....W. Fowlie
Cypher, "a friend of education,"—director.....T. J. Fowlie
Trueblood—director.....A. C. Dunn
Milt Harmon.....H. L. Emerson
Johnnie Grump, the "little son".....M. C. Whitford
Jamie McWhack, janitor.....B. J. Curtis

The societies were accorded a liberal patronage and the actors acquitted themselves in a creditable manner. The music consisted of a solo on an alto horn by C. M. Post with piano accompaniment by Miss Haven and a piano duet by Misses Hakes and Haven. Managers of future entertainments will do the public a kindness by putting the college bell ringer in a cage during the evening. The best scene in the "school ma'am" was as Greek to the audience owing to the fact that nothing but the college bell could be heard during its presentation.

—The many friends of Prof. O. E. Larkin, who has been teaching at Viroqua during the past year, are glad to see him about the village again.

—Our path masters have "downed" the grass around the park and on the common north of the railroad. Well done, good and faithful servants, enter in and get a cigar.

—Teams, not trains, met the camp-meeting people at this village this week on the arrival of the Monroe express.

—Wm. Bowen, not Brown, was the visitor at Evan Davis'.

—Pathmaster Davidson repaired the sidewalks and roadcrossings in his district last week.

—D. Williams was in Milwaukee last week attending the Masonic Grand Lodge.

—Will Cheney, representing John A. Tolman & Co., wholesale grocers of Chicago, was in town Friday. Will is a good man to tie to.

—The storm of last Saturday was accompanied by a violent wind. Two currents of air united in front of the block and passed through Agent Tomkins garden, throwing down some fence, uprooting two trees in his garden, and filling his house with dust. The gale shook up Borden's lumber yard, but did not do much damage.

—Prof. J. G. Burdick occupied the pulpit at the Seventh-Day Baptist church, Saturday morning, and was assisted by Superintendent Whitford and Rev. V. Hull.

—Rev. S. Sing and wife, of Canada, arrived in town last week, and are the guests of their cousin, R. Richardson.

—A goodly number of tobacco growers were setting plants last Sunday, the ground being in fine condition.

—Enoch Bond was in town Sunday. He has just returned from Missouri.

—Williams & Borden are buying wool. Price for medium wool ranges from thirty to thirty-two cents. Many of the farmers are firm in their views, and refuse to accept present values.

—P. Tomkins and wife spent Sunday at Albany, visiting relatives.

—Rev. Samuel Ling occupied the pulpit at the M. E. church, Sunday morning. His sermon on that occasion is highly commended.

—Ex-Mayor Cobb and wife, of Janesville, were in town Sunday, the guests of S. S. Obourn, Esq.

THE HUMAN HAIR.

How to Preserve and Beautify It.

Many persons abuse this delicate and beautiful ornament by burning it with alcoholic washes and plastering it with grease, which has no affinity for the skin, and is not absorbed. BURNETT'S COCOAINE, a compound of Cocoanut Oil, etc., is unrivalled as a dressing for the hair—is readily absorbed, and is peculiarly adapted to its various conditions, preventing its falling off and promoting its healthy growth.

Housekeepers should insist upon obtaining BURNETT'S FLAVORING EXTRACTS, for they are the best.

EVANSVILLE.

—The graduating exercises of Evansville high school, class of '81 took place in the M. E. church, Friday afternoon, the church was crowded to its utmost capacity, there being about 600 people to witness the exercises. Prof. C. G. Titcomb presided at the piano and Mrs. St. John sang some very pleasing songs. Mr. Austin may be complimented here, he having the valedictory, "National Heroes," and recited it to the astonishment of every one present. On the whole the exercises were very nice indeed. After the exercises about 150 invited guests including the class '81 proceeded to the residence of Mr. Frank Gibb, where the evening was spent in chatting and singing. The yards were beautifully illuminated with Japanese lanterns and the tables were all set under the trees and loaded with everything that was nice. At 9:30 o'clock the guests were ushered out to partake of the bountiful repast. After supper Miss Alice Ring, Miss Estella Prentice, Miss Ella Cook, played and sang some very beautiful pieces. At 11:30 the party broke up and all wended their way to their respective homes, very much pleased with their evening's entertainment.

—Mr. and Mrs. D. F. Stevens, of Chicago, who have been visiting Mr. and Mrs. Johnson, departed last week for Canada.

—There will be a grand opening of MaGee's new hall Monday evening, July 24th. Prof. J. M. Smith's orchestra furnish the music. A grand time is expected.

—Mr. Gilmore Vaughn, of Lansing, Minn., is visiting friends here. Mr. Vaughn was an old resident of Evansville.

—Mr. and Mrs. Johnson have rented the Sawtelle property and expect to move soon.

—C. G. Titcomb, Mrs. St. John, Mrs. Wheeler, and Miss Hattie Dearborn, all of Janesville, took tea with Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Hollister Friday evening.

Frank Bardal, North Bennett street, Buffalo, says: I have tried your SPRING BLOSSOM as a family medicine and have never come across anything to do so much good in so short a time in cases of indigestion, dyspepsia and derangement of the stomach; I strongly recommend it. Price $1, trial size, 10 cents.

Genius and Work.

It has been proposed lately to erect a bust in the Metropolitan Museum in New York in honor of Edgar A. Poe. The proposal has brought to light many anecdotes and recollections of the dead poet, more pleasant than those commonly known.

A gentleman associated with Mr. Poe as editor of a magazine for several years, said lately: "I would not wish to be connected in business with a more courteous, hard-working, gentle gentleman than Poe was, when sober. A single glass, however, was enough to madden him." The point, however, to which we wish to call attention in his recollections, is this: "Poe," he says, "was one of the most painstaking, indefatigable literary artists I have ever known. His manuscripts were corrected and rewritten innumerable times. The very poems to which his admirers point as brilliant flashes of genius were produced slowly, with infinite care built up line by line, like a mathematical problem."

Young people are apt to fancy that that intangible faculty called genius can create marvels as by an electric flash without the support of hard work. We doubt, however, if this has ever been the case. Byron, who is probably more credited than any of his contemporaries with genius, unsupported by any of the solid qualities, was a most laborious, careful writer, sometimes revising a single line a dozen times.

The great tragedian Kean was tireless in the drudgery of his art. He spent two days in practicing the single line, "Bertram has kissed thy child!" but when spoken, so vivid and natural was its pathos that the house melted to tears.

George Eliot read, Mr. Lewis stated, over one thousand books on Jewish history, etc., before writing "Daniel Deronda." She studied Greek, Latin, French, German, Italian and Hebrew, and wrote for years anonymously before coming before the public.

Yet young girls and boys, still in their teens, rush before the world with their crude efforts, ballasted neither by facts or original thought and complain that they fall flat and unwelcomed.—Youth's Companion.

PUNGENT PARAGRAPHS.

—"I've just got out of a bad scrape," as the man said when he came out of a five-cent barber shop.

—The thermometer is one of the few things that can fall without hurting itself.—Philadelphia Chronicle.

—Never address your conversation to a person engaged in footing up a column of figures. There's nothing so deaf as an adder.—Cambridge Tribune.

—"Papa, how do editors get in free at all the shows?" "Well, sonny, as a general rule, they give five dollars worth of advertising for a twenty-five cent ticket."

—A poem in one of our exchanges is entitled "The Cold, Cold Snow." Perhaps the poet is not aware that the snow is always cold in the winter time.—Norristown Herald.

—Recently a matron made her appearance on the piazza where her daughter and the latter's young man had gone several hours before to enjoy the evening air and moonshine, and began looking around as if she had lost something. "What are you looking for, ma?" asked the young lady. "The morning papers," was the reply. The porch was vacated.

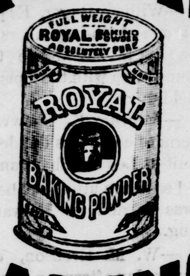

—"Doctor," said one of our best young men in society. "Doctor, there is something the matter with my brain; I know there is. What shall I do about it?" And the doctor calmly but firmly said he guessed it needed a little exercise about as much as anything else. And now the best young man goes around saying the doctor is a fool.

Mexico's Iron Mountain.

One of the great mineral wonders of Mexico, and perhaps of the world, is the Iron Mountain in the immediate vicinity of Durango, in the State of Durango. The Iron Mountain is nearly two miles in length and one mile wide and about 700 feet high. Above the surface, uncovered and in sight, it shows about 200,000,000 tons of pure ore, ready to be shovelled or rolled, without any cost of mining, into the furnaces to be erected at its base. Much of this ore ranges from seventy to ninety per cent., and some is carried directly to the forge. It works very kindly and easily assumes the form of steel. There is every reason to believe ores of such rare superiority, when subject to all our modern improvements in iron making, will produce iron and steel unsurpassed anywhere in the world, either in Sweden, or Biscay, in Spain, or England, or the United States.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

BRIEFLETS.

—June is of age to-day.

—Rather chilly for a camp-meeting opening.

—The thermometer took a drop too much last night.

—The municipal court is to open next Monday, but where?

—The public schools close Friday for their summer vacation.

—The plans for celebrating the Fourth of July here are creating much enthusiasm among the citizens.

—The Beloit Guards meet to-night to decide whether they will accept the intation to spend the Fourth in Janesville.

—There is every indication of there being a large audience to greet the Fisk Jubilee Singers at the Congregational church to-morrow evening.

—The game at Madison last Saturday, between the Beloit college nine and the State university nine resulted in a tie, the score being 8 to 8 at the end of the eighth inning, the weather preventing the playing of the ninth.

—Those who intend offering special premiums, or who want advertising space in the premium list of the coming Rock county fair, should report at once to Secretary W. T. Vankirk, as the list is about ready to be printed.

—The funeral service of the infant son of Mr. & Mrs. Philip Knippenberg were held yesterday afternoon at the family residence. They thank their friends for the kindness shown to them in the time of their bereavment.

—An invitation has been extended to the Lake City Guards, of Madison, to come to Janesville on the Fourth. Captain Chapman telegraphs in reply that he thinks the company will come, but a meeting will be held first, to decide.

—James Whalen, of Milwaukee, was in the city yesterday, and wasn't used to such strong whisky. It whirled his head, and he had to be locked up. He paid his fine and then had over $2,000 left in the bank, as shown by certificates of deposit.

—A young girl in three hours this morning picked thirty-six quarts of strawberries on Mr. Nathan Moore's place, about two miles from the city. The berries show careful picking too. Where's that committee who are hunting for the boss girl?

—Cornelius O'Leary, known among the lads as "Walker O'Leary," was pretty full yesterday and wanted to thump Jack Griffin, but he didn't. He now languishes in jail for eight days, being unable to pay the $5 and costs taxed him by the police justice.

—John Freeman, a farm hand of Porter, can be found at the jail for the next eight days, unless by some good luck he secures the needed wealth to square an account of $5 and costs, charged up against him in the police court this morning, on account of his being drunk yesterday.

—In the apportionment of the State school fund this city having 3,386 children is granted $1,405.19. Beloit city having 1,589 children receives $659.43. The largest apportionment to any town or village in the county is to Fulton, which has 719 children, and its share of the fund is fixed at $298.38. Milton having 502 children receives $208.33.

—Miss Emma Sprague, who has charge of the juvenile work of the Good Templars, last evening perfected the organization of a juvenile lodge here, there being fifty members, from six to sixteen years of age, the organization to be known as "Buds of Promise." The officers are Minnie Croft, Hattie Snow, Charlie Young, J. Groat, George Baldwin, Clara Tuckwood, Arthur Kent, Clara Kent, Mattie Maxon, Artie Canniff, Alice Hemming, Ella Libbey, Miss E. Brewster.

—C. C. McLean who went to Chicago to complete arrangements for the Highlanders to come to Janesville on the Fourth, telegraphs that everything is satisfactory, and that the company will have four pipers instead of two as usual, besides Scotch dancers, and three good athletes, the champions in their specialties in the whole country. Several members of the company are also excellent athletes, so there is the assurance of some decidedly interesting Scottish games.

—Last evening one of Forepaugh's advertising men was interesting a large crowd on the street by showing up magic lantern pictures. Forepaugh evidently intends not to let people forget that he is to be in Janesville next Friday. He draws a crowd wherever he appears, and the streets of Janesville will be thronged on that day, with those anxious to see his wonderful street parade, and his tents will needs be big, indeed, if they afford room for all who will crowd to see the startling attractions promised in the menagerie and ring.

—Rev. S. C. Thomas has lately purchased one of Dr. Hathaway's electric chairs, which is a decided novelty. By it a person can be subjected to treatment by electricity without any inconvenience, the patient simply sitting in the chair, while the operator can send the current through any portion of the body which is desired, controlling the strength and direction of the current completely. Those interested can examine and test this mode of treating by electricity, by calling at Mr. Thomas' residence, just south of the First Methodist church.

—The managers of the county fair have after using much persuasion succeeded in getting Hon. John Wentworth, of Chicago, everywhere known as "Long John," to give an address. Aside from the prominence he has secured by his official and public career, he has won rank as being one of the most successful stock raisers in the West, and has the finest stock farm in Illinois. He has been closely connected with the agricultural interests of this country since the early years of its settlement, and being a man of broad common sense and acknowledged ability as a speaker, he will surely give an address which will be worthy of the large and intelligent audience which will heartily welcome him to Rock county.

—A telegram was received last evening from the father of Frederick Hiltbold, the young man who was drowned last Sunday. The father being in New York city, was unable to reach here, but in accordance with his directions the funeral service was held this morning. A number of acquaintances gathered at the house of Mr. Michael Buob, where the body was, and where very appropriate services were held by Rev. T. P. Sawin. There were a number of floral tributes and every possible tribute was paid befitting such an occasion, and to atone as far as possible for the necessary absence of those relatives and friends, who would gladly have paid these tributes themselves. The remains were taken to Oak Hill cemetery for interment. At the time of Sergeant Childers' funeral Rev. Mr. Sawin remarked that it was the first occasion in his whole ministry, where he was called to officiate at a funeral, at which no relative or near friend of the deceased was present. Now a second such occasion has been added to his varied experience in the ministry.

—Last night about 1 o'clock two pistol shots were heard in the First ward, and soon Officer Smith came running up to find the cause. It appears that a woman becoming frightened at hearing a man prowling about the yard, and her husband being away from home, fired her revolver to call help. The officer spying a fellow prowling about the yard, pulled his revolver, but keeping cool, yelled to the fellow to throw up his hands, and march out. He did so, and as he passed out into the light of a lamp-post, the features of the man showed up. He was a little boozed, and had gone into the wrong field, and apologized for the mistake, saying he meant no harm. He is said to be pretty well known by all the officers, and to this fact he may owe largely his escape from being bored through by a bullet, or locked up as a burglar. If Officer Smith had been hasty in shooting, if the woman's shots had been better directed, or if the officer had not known his man, there would doubtless have been a corpse or an invalid as the basis of a sensation to-day. Those who tarry long at the cup, and then prowl around in other folks' yards at night, take many chances.

—Yesterday afternoon the art class of Mrs. R. H. Cook gave a public reception at her studio. The walls were covered with showings of the artistic skill of many of Janesville's ladies, and the display was one which would bear hours of study and admiration, many of the paintings being extraordinary fine. Among those whose work was thus exhibited, were: Miss Ella Cassoday, Mrs. J. L. Croft, Miss Edna Withington, Miss Clara Drake, Miss May Baldwin, Mrs. E. B. Heimstreet, Miss. Hattie Lappin, Miss Nannie Royce, Miss Susie Drake, Miss Dottie Watson, Mrs. Fred Sonneborn, Mrs. J. B. Doe, Miss Annie Atwood, Mrs. B. B. Eldredge, Mrs. E. E. Loomis, Mrs. S. Holdredge, Mrs. J. W. Sale, Mrs. H. D. McKinney, Miss Millie Chittenden, Miss Charlotte Prichard, Mrs. J. L. Ford, Miss Ella and Willis, of Brodhead. Mrs. Cook had also a collection of her own paintings, which were gazed upon with great interest. She certainly is a most excellent artist and teacher, and the work of herself and members of her class is praise sufficient. She now takes a trip through the east to visit friends, and sketch, and on her return will resume her work here with greater assurances of steadily increasing success than ever.

IF "cleanliness is the scale of civilization," Janesville must stand high on the scale, judging from the immense quantities of toilet soaps Prentice & Evenson have just received. For pure vegetable oil soaps go to the drug store opposite the post office.

—W. M. Evenson, went to Madison yesterday afternoon to consult with the officers and members of the Lake City Guards, concerning that company coming here on the Fourth. He reports that they receive the invitation with much favor, and there is reason to believe they will accept.

THE WEATHER.

REPORTED BY PRENTICE & EVENSON, DRUGGISTS

The thermometer at 6 o'clock last night stood at 69 degrees above; at 1 o'clock A. M. to-day at 54 degrees above; at 7 o'clock A. M. at 54 degrees above, and at 1 o'clock P. M., at 67 degrees above zero. Partly cloudy.

The indications to-day are, fair weather, winds mostly northeasterly, and stationary or higher temperature.

THAT DROWNING.

The accidental drowning of Frederick Hiltbold on Sunday last, was given in last evening's Gazette, just as the facts were stated by witnesses at the inquest, they making their statements of course under oath. Mr. Brooks desires to give his understanding of the matter, and has addressed to us the following letter:

To the Editor.

In justice to the Lotos, the people that were on board, and to myself, allow me to correct some of the statements in your article in regard to the drowning of Frederick Hiltbold. There was no liquor on the boat to be sold. I carried up some beer for parties that were to have a picnic. The trip was a free ride; I did not collect from any one, it being the first trip of the season. Hiltbold did not leave the boat during the trip. He was requested by two parties to stand away from the gangway, but did not do so. As I was at the wheel, I did not know that any one was overboard until the boat was on shore. I am told by parties that were on the boat, and on the bridge that he threw his hat on the boat and jumped into the river; that he did not give any alarm, or make any noise, while in the water. In regard to the boat leaving so soon the steam pump would not work. The water was very low in the boiler, and I had to run out to fill her boiler. At the time he fell over there were but eight men on the boat; there was plenty of room for him to stand without standing on the edge of the boat. Parties that know him best say that he has had some trouble, and that he has not acted right for some days. O. BROOKS.

PECK'S FOURTH.

The committee having in charge the arrangements for celebrating the Fourth of July here hoped to be able to have George W. Peck give one of the addresses of the day, and in response to an invitation extended to him, he writes the following:

MILWAUKEE, June 20, 1881.

Chas. E. Moseley:

DEAR SIR:—Your dispatch reached me in bed Sunday morning, and I telegraphed you Monday morning. The fact of the matter is that I have no time to prepare anything that would be suitable for an address, and little time to get away, my business being so confining. I have thought the past two years that I would stay with my people on the 4th, and lay down under a tree, far away from the deadly firecracker, and let bugs and ants have a celebration by crawling up my frowsers legs, and down my back. Somebody should be kind to the bugs and it might as well be me as anybody'. We are too apt to think of our own enjoyment, and let the little bugs that God made—at least the making of them is charged against God,—go hungry. Besides, lastly, I tell you in confidence, that since the war the firing of firecrackers makes the cold chills run up my back, and it is all I can do to keep from stampeding. At Green Bay, two years ago, they had to hold me, when a bunch of firecrackers went off, to keep me from jumping into the river.

You ought to have a statesman to deliver an oration, one that can take the eagle in one hand, and the fifty dollars you pay him in the other, and make things howl. If we get to ignoring statesman on the 4th of July, and hiring some nine spot editor who don't know a patriotic sentiment from a recipe for cooking asparagus, statesmen will get discouraged and go into some other business. I wouldn't blame them at all. Orating is what they are built for. On several occasions where I have delivered alleged orations, it has nearly broke up the celebration, and people went away saying, "Well, I have seen a good many d——d fools, but that bald headed cuss beats them all." Such things make me feel sad. Please excuse me, and I will do as much for you some time,

Yours truly,
GEO. W. PECK

WORDS TO THE VETERANS.

Ex-Chaplain Foot's Regrets at not Being able to Attend the Reunion of the Thirteenth Wisconsin Regiment.

The following letter has been received from Rev. J. I. Foot, who was formerly chaplain of the Thirteenth Wisconsin regiment:

AUSTIN, Texas, June 6, 1881.

To Messrs. W. A. Knilans, F. C. Bulen, and W. P. Clark, of the 13th Wis., Vet. Vol. Infty.

DEAR COMRADES: Yours came duly to hand notifying me of the forthcoming reunion of the 13th Regt. of Wis. Vet. Vols. You cannot think how much I would like to be with you on that occasion. It is a renewal of life to meet around the campfires, and on the tented field, though on a diminutive scale compared with those times which tried mens souls; with the glorious men whose memories are crowded with the thrilling events of that ever memorable crisis in our national history, which drew the brave and noble of the land to fields of fire and blood.

How your hearts will thrill as you greet each other again, old veterans, many of whom are drawing near the end of life's great warfare. How tears will fall and hearts melt together as of yore, at the recital of scenes of peril of suffering and death, through which it was the lot of the soldier to pass in the dread ordeal of soldier life.

The old 13th was tried, and true and faithful. In the sorrow of defeat or joy of victory, in weariness, in watchings and wasting sickness, in toil and pain, in the patient guard duty and the weary march, at the dreary bivouac, in rain and storm and darkness, in stern fidelity and ceaseless vigilance on mountain and in valley, along the river in brake and marsh and fen, from their sunny homes in old Rock and Green, through twelve states to the burning sands of the Gulf of Mexico, the 13th ever exhibited the unfaltering devotion to the sacred cause of the Union.

You will remember the news in camp of the surrender, and the shoutings like the sound of many waters, of thousands who knew the war was ended, followed almost in an instant by the tidings of the assassination of our great Commander in Chief the immortal Lincoln, turning the joy of victory to the sobbings and bitterness of unutterable grief.

These things will seem to you, at the reunion, only as of yesterday.

After war, peace came. "It came" we trust "to stay." Beneath sunny skies, and in perfect security the soldier has rested on his laurels. The nation lives a new life. It was not all in vain.

With a mightier energy and nobler purpose the nation lives.

The fetters are broken, schools and churches abound where once bondsmen were driven by the lash, among whom to speak of freedom, or spread the newspaper was a crime, where once was stolid ignorance and thriftless poverty, and where many in half starved idleness hung about plantations fed by boughten slaves, now, the bonds of slavery and of caste, cut by the soldier's sword, unloosed by the spelling-book, the race of life if open for all to run who will.

Who can tell how grand the issues of the war shall be till they have come to full fruition?

Our hearts turn heavy and sad to the graves of our noble men. Scattered they are from Wisconsin to the Rio Grande. Along the highways and rivers, on the prairies and in the forest, we laid them in soldiers graves. How some of them clung to life. Home was dear to them; dear to them father and mother, wife and children, and to die with no loved one near. How tenderly will we cherish their memory. Oh, that they could hear the bugle sound and awakening at the morning reveille, appear at the reunion to look upon the land they loved so well and died to save; to look upon home and friends once more as they parted from them at their country's call, our men, and the ten thousands who, like them, died in their country's cause.

On receipt of your notice Mrs. Foot and I went to San Antonio, Texas to see the burial place of our men in blue. There in a pretty spot, carefully kept by an ex-soldier, with arched gateways and iron gates, winding walks, beds of flowers, their graves marked by stone pillars, and over them the starry banner, is the resting place of a number of our regiment. The government still cares for and watches over the graves of the Nation's dead.

In large letters at the turn of a path we noticed this sad inscription:

"The muffled drum's sad roll has beat
The soldier's last tattoo;
No more on life's parade shall meet
That brave and fallen few."

The books are open, and here we gather the names of the different cemeteries where men of the 13th rest from Wisconsin to Brownsville on the Rio Grande.

Give greetings to the men of the old 13th at the re-union. Right royal men were they; may their sun go down late, only to rise on the early morrow in renewed splendor.

Let us hope to meet—all our warfare ended—in the land where nations learn war no more.

And let us fervently pray that the union of these states may never again need cementing on bloody fields of battle; nor the troubled waters of national strife ever henceforth require the dread arbitrament of the bloody sword.

Very truly yours,
J. I. FOOT,
Ex-Chaplain.
